

In regards to your proposal to make a federal rule to supersede and to weaken the Indiana No Call list rule I would like to comment against it.

If it is the right of telemarketers to practice free speech, this is my only method to practice my free speech in that I choose not to participate. Everyday there are dozens of assemblages and events where people can say what they want. I choose not to attend most of them, even if I agree with their agenda.

By having the state flip a "switch" for me I am opting out of the telemarketers intrusion into my life. It is annoying for the phone to ring, I stop whatever I am doing to answer only to have someone attempt to sell me something I won't buy cold on the phone anyway.

Keep my state's No Call List active or make a better stronger federal one.

Thank You,
